

Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

A 241.01
F 762E
Cop. 2

June 3, 1965

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FOREST SERVICE
U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE
NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL LIBRARY
FOREST PRODUCTS LABORATORY
MADISON, WISCONSIN

MAR 10 1967

Exchange of Translations Scheme
CURRENT SERIAL RECORDS (British Commonwealth Forestry Conference)

Translation No.

Author, Title, and Source

(a) Translations completed and distributed

NIL

(b) Translations being reproduced

NIL

(c) Translations scheduled

- |     |   |
|-----|---|
| 626 | BUSCHBECK, L., KEHR, E. and JENSEN, U.Investigation of the suitability of various types and categories of wood for the manufacture of particle board. 1. Beech and Scots Pine. Holztechnologie 2(2):99-110, 1961. |
| 627 | BUSCHBECK, L., KEHR, E., and SHERFKE, R.Investigation of the suitability of various types and categories of wood for the manufacture of particle board. 2. Pine small wood. Holztechnologie 2(3):195-201, 1961.   |
| 628 | ZAK, H., and KRAUTHAUF, E. Changes in sulfite pulp quality due to open-air storage of hardwood and softwood chips. Das Papier 18(11): 691-699, 1964.  |
| 629 | STEGMANN, G., and GINZEL, W. Determination of the content of urea-formaldehyde adhesives in particle board. Holz als Roh- und Werkstoff 23(2):55-57, 1965.  |

- 630 HINSELMANN, D., JENTSCH, S., and DRECHSLER, W. Investigations on manufacturing medium density fiberboard after the fiber-drying process. Holztechnologie 5(4):219-224, 1964.
- 631 GILLWALD, W., and GÖTZE, H. Investigations on the influence of particle moisture on the production of particle board in small plants using shavings and Plastacol 470. Holztechnologie
5(4):241-247, 1964.